May 22 – Owl Calls

This walk is located in the central Black Hills. A biologist from the Rocky Mountain Bird Observatory will introduce visitors to the types of owls in our area, their biology, habitat needs and calls.

June 26 – Forest Wildflowers

This walk is located in the central Black Hills. Forest botanists will introduce visitors to the habitat, identification, and management of a variety of wildflowers and possibly rare plants of the Hills.

July 24 – Prehistoric Rock Art

This walk is located in the southern Black Hills. Forest archaeologists will share their knowledge of prehistoric rock art, what attracted some of the earliest visitors to the Hills and how they lived here.

August 21 – Grassland Conservation

This walk is located east of Scenic, SD. The Nature Conservancy will discuss the unique plants and conservation efforts of this recent land acquisition while visitors enjoy a breathtaking view of a grassland landscape.

September 18 – Mining Towns of the late 1800's

This walk is located in the central Black Hills. A local historian will tell the story of a late 1800's mining community and its residents.
